Important points

1. Travel insurance for Everest Base Camp Trek

The Everest Base Camp trek is highly advised with travel insurance. Airlifts for medical crises are occasionally necessary, but rescue workers need insurance or money before they can help. Before the expedition, don't forget to purchase travel insurance.

2. Banking and ATM on Everest Base Camp Trek

As there aren't many ATMs along the Everest Base Camp trek, bring cash. There are ATMs only in Lukla and Namche Bazaar, however, they might not always function because of satellite problems.

3. Travel Tips for Everest Base Camp Trek (Electricity, Internet, ATM, Luggage, tipping, personal expenses)

Bring extra chargers or a solar charger, as electricity is not always available during the trek. Internet connectivity is limited, and there may be additional fees for its use. Bring extra cash as ATMs are not available above Namche Bazar. You can store extra baggage for free in the hotel's locker room. Tipping is required but not included in the trek package cost. Additional expenses like souvenirs, food, and beverages require cash. Travel insurance and foreign flight tickets are not included in the package price.

Important points

4. Lukla flight and cancellation on Everest Base Camp Trek

Flights to Lukla may experience unforeseen flight changes due to weather in the Himalayas. Consider adding a day before your overseas travel to prevent delays. In case of flight delays, we advise staying an extra night in Kathmandu. If required, we may reschedule your flight or set up a helicopter rental to get you to Lukla.

5. We have kept a buffer day in this itinerary.

We will only charge for buffer day (INR 4000 per person) in case we use it during the trek. This is to account for any weather-related delays or if a team is tired and needs an extra day to push to a camp. If we reach Lukla on Day 13, we will not charge for the buffer day but you will have to bear the expenses (food and stay) on your own for that extra day (Day 14). The money will be collected by your trek leader only if we use the buffer day.

6. Kindly ensure that you arrive at Kathmandu before the afternoon on Day 1 so you can rest well before the next day's departure to Lukla.
